1.0 Introduction and Purpose

The Defense Commissary Agency (DeCA) is conducting market research to identify potential sources capable of providing refrigerated trailer rentals to support 33 commissary locations in the Continental United States (CONUS) and Alaska during the 2026 holiday season. The objective of this RFI is to gain a comprehensive understanding of the marketplace, identify capable sources (including small businesses), and refine the agency's acquisition strategy.

2.0 Background

DeCA requires temporary, temperature-controlled storage capacity at various commissary locations to handle the increased inventory of frozen turkeys and other perishable holiday food items. The performance period is seasonal, with rentals typically starting in late September/early October 2026 and ending in mid-January 2027. This is a recurring requirement, and the proposed acquisition will be for a single contract to cover all 33 locations for the 2026 holiday season.

- Diesel trailers must be delivered with a full tank of fuel, with levels verified at delivery and pickup.
- Electric trailers must be delivered with all required electrical components and connected to the site's power supply to ensure operational start-up.
- All trailers must be started upon delivery to verify good working order, with the temperature set as required by the Commissary Officer.

 - Provide an emergency response time of 2 hours after notification to begin restoration of service.
