STATEMENT OF WORK

1.0 Background

USCAAF exercises worldwide appellate jurisdiction over members of the armed forces on active duty and other persons subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Cases on the Court's docket address a broad range of legal issues, including constitutional law, criminal law, evidence, criminal procedure, ethics, administrative law, and national security law. The civilian Court oversees the military justice system to ensure that the military defendants have as much rights as allowed by the applicable federal statutes.

2.0 Scope

USCAAF requires access to comprehensive legal databases that provide current and past information/analyses on a wide-range of subjects, including case law, statutory law, constitutional law, criminal law, evidence, criminal procedure, ethics, administrative law, and national security law. Research in the above topics will allow the Court's federal judges and attorneys to make accurate interpretation of the statutes and regulations that will govern the decision of the cases before the Court.

3.0 Requirements

Subscription to a service that can provide sophisticated intuitive search mechanisms that can accurately retrieve hard-to-find information among the thousands of databases, some of which go as far back as the late 18th century. These requirements include:

- Comprehensive collection of Federal and state case law, federal and state statutes, court rules, regulations, attorney general opinions, administrative rulings
- unpublished decisions of the military Courts of Criminal Appeals
- case history and case law validation via Shepard's Citation Service -- direct history prior and following cited case, including treatment analyses from all other federal and state cases and legal articles which have cited to the identified cited case
- comprehensive federal and state legislative materials and legislative histories dating back to 1776
- Matthew Bender legal treatises on constitutional, criminal, evidentiary, federal practice, and federal jury instruction laws
- law journals, newspapers, newsletters, magazines, trade journals, wire services and transcripts, world news, business analysis and country information, congressional tweets, legal blogs, and defense publications

- public records – names, addresses, telephone numbers, real estate assets, bankruptcy and judgment records, tax liens, criminal filings
- access to next-generation platform Lexis+ which uses AI to retrieve better/more relevant search results
- basic and specialized search features to retrieve information from a single or multiple databases, including document analysis via legal issue indexing and using similar citation or language pattern; code/regulation/court rule/legislation comparisons with prior versions for historical changes; practice areas guidance; visual research path/tree to see relevance of search terms
- Bluebook citation provided for quoted materials copied from database to user's document
- notification of updated information based on queries created by users
- printing and download delivery options
- 24/7 technical support and reference service, on-site support and training
- Allows approximately 40 USCAAF users to access subscription contents
- generative AI platform for research and memo drafting
