Describe in detail why only this source can furnish the requirements to the exclusion of other sources.

*DoD Guidebook for Acquiring Commercial Items Part B, Pricing Commercial Items (Page 2): "The fact is DoD must acquire a significant amount of "sole source" items and services that meet the commercial item definition. Frequently, DoD ends up in commercial sole source situations for reasons other than there only being one qualified firm that can provide the product or service. One common reason is the nonrecurring cost and time investment spent by the Government and commercial supplier to tailor their commercial item to meet a military purpose."

[REDACTED] his suggested source has been providing these parts sole source for this assembly for a number of years.

Due to uniqueness and importance of EMP protection console NAVSEA recommendation is to utilize same manufacturer for all EMP materials to ensure compatibility resulting in no likelihood of failure. EMP materials from the same manufacturer will interface correctly and have been tested to perform together. Mixing multiple manufacturers increases likelihood of failure and incompatibility. ICORE fittings have no compatibility with the items manufactured by other companies. Therefore, ICORE materials must be installed with other ICORE items. The system these parts are fore are outfitted with all ICORE products.
