Industry Day

PURPOSE

The Air Force Life Cycle Management Center is hosting an Industry Day to actively investigate innovative methods for delivering Regional Military Protection (RMP) capabilities to the warfighter. This industry day will facilitate a discussion with interested industry partners to assess the feasibility of embedding this technology directly into M-Code compliant weapon systems—an approach that could offer a powerful, jam-resistant advantage. The objective is to foster a collaborative discussion, explore potential partnerships, and define a clear path forward by outlining the technical, logistical, and programmatic requirements for integrating this future capability.
