Section B: Description of the Supplies/Services Required

This is a procurement to acquire three metrology furnaces for use of calibrating standard platinum thermometers for the Air Force Primary Standards Laboratory. These furnaces are used to create stable calibration environments for the most accurate thermometer calibrations in the Air Force. One will be used for the tin fixed point, one for the zinc fixed point, and one for annealing all thermometers.

Section C: Justification for Soliciting from a Single Source or Brand Name

Only Isotech North America can provide the furnaces without substantial duplication of costs. The furnaces are required to be used with proprietary fixed point tin and zinc cells. No other manufacturer makes a furnace that is compatible with the existing cells. The Isotech furnaces are also interchangeable between annealing and fixed point cells, so it provides the Air Force more flexibility.

Current furnaces are 20+ years old and are no longer supported by the manufacturer.

Section D: Efforts to Obtain Competition

Isotech North America is OEM of our existing cells and is offering the new metrology furnaces that are compatible. Engineering reached out to Isotech North America for a cost estimate and were provided an estimate of [REDACTED] per unit, for a total of [REDACTED]

Not pursuing sole source and procuring new furnaces and all required cells from another manufacturer would be a substantial duplication of costs. Estimates were [REDACTED] from Fluke and [REDACTED] from Pond Engineering.

Section E: Steps to Preclude Future Single Source or Brand Name Awards

Future procurements for this calibration equipment will be for a new system and be solicited as full and open competition. A market survey will be conducted to determine potential future sources.
