2. SOW / Solicitation Reference: SOW; Deliverables Sec. F(a)(i) [PAGE 4]

The SOW requires the CxA to update issue logs beginning at the first A/E design review (DD2 – 65%), but it does not define a formal design review role for the CxA. Please clarify whether the CxA is expected to independently review A/E design submissions and generate issue log entries, or if issues will be provided solely by the VA and its consultants. If the CxA is responsible for generating issues, please define the expected scope and format of the review and deliverables at each submission stage.

VA Response: The VA Whole Building Commissioning Process Manual (Cx Whole Building Commissioning Process Manual) requires commissioning to occur during the design phase. The CxA is expected to independently review A/E design submissions and generate issue log entries per Section “5 - Design Phase Commissioning” of the Whole Building Commissioning Process Manual. Section “5.3 – Commissioning Agent Tasks” defines the tasks that are required for each design submission.

3. SOW / Solicitation Reference: Evaluation Factor 2 – Professional Qualifications; SOW Sec. 1, 2, 3 [PAGE 12]

The solicitation requests SF330 Section E resumes for a Commissioning Agent, Life-Safety Reviewer (Fire Protection Engineer, P.E.), and Constructability Reviewer. As Life-Safety and Constructability roles are not typically identified as key personnel within a Cx scope, and given the inclusion of Design Phase review, please clarify whether additional key personnel (e.g., mechanical or electrical engineers supporting Design Phase commissioning reviews) should also be included.

VA Response: The SOW includes requirements for a Commissioning Agent, Life-Safety Reviewer and a Constructability reviewer which are separate scope areas within the overall SOW. The team members proposed for the each of these scope areas should have the appropriate qualifications to complete the tasks indicated. The professional qualifications requirements for each scope area are identified in the SSEB evaluation criteria document.
