

This is a topographical map of Southern California, specifically focusing on the Inland Empire region. It shows parts of San Bernardino, Riverside, and Orange counties. A prominent red outline encloses a large area centered around Chino Hills, which is indicated by a red star. Major freeways are shown in blue with their respective shields (e.g., I-10, I-15, SR-60). Smaller roads are depicted in grey. The map includes labels for numerous cities and towns, such as Fontana, Upland, Rialto, and Redlands. Geographical features like mountains, valleys (e.g., Jurupa Valley), and lakes (e.g., Lake Mathews, Lake Perris) are clearly marked. The terrain is color-coded to show elevation, with greener areas representing lower elevations and brown/grey areas representing higher elevations or urban development.
