INTRODUCTION

Responses to this RFI may be used to formulate final requirements and/or to identify qualified vendors capable of meeting those requirements. The description below outlines preliminary requirements envisioned by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Critical Incident Response Group (CIRG) for Forensic Pathology Services. The information gathered may be used to formulate acquisition strategies for competitive solicitations.

BACKGROUND

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) mission is to protect and defend the United States against terrorist and foreign intelligence threats, to uphold and enforce the criminal laws of the United States, and to provide leadership and criminal justice services to federal, state, municipal, and international agencies and partners. The FBI performs these responsibilities in a manner that is responsive to the needs of the public and is faithful to the Constitution of the United States.

The Critical Incident Response Group (CIRG), Investigative and Operational Support Section (IOSS) which houses the Behavioral Analysis Units (BAUs), has a continuing requirement to assist federal, state, local, and foreign law enforcement agencies in matters involving child abductions, mysterious disappearances of children, child homicides, and other child victimization investigations. Specifically, BAU-3 which focuses on Violent Crimes Against Children has a need for a trained medical examiner to provide Forensic Pathology services by conducting on-site case consultations telephone conference calls with investigators at the IOSS on all aspects of pediatric and adult death investigations.

The primary objectives the FBI pursues through collaboration with medical examiners include:

- Establishment of Legal Evidence: Securing scientific assessments and interpretations that are pivotal for trial testimony and investigative success.
- Cause and Manner of Death: Determining whether a death was a homicide, suicide, accident, or natural to establish federal jurisdiction.
- Evidence Collection and Preservation:
 - Identifying areas on a victim's body where a suspect may have deposited DNA.
