

English 101:

Introduction to Composition for the Naval Service Member

Course Description

During this eight-week course, students will be introduced to the basics of English Composition to provide them with the writing skills needed for success at USNCC and beyond. Throughout the course, students will learn foundational composition skills necessary for college-level writing, including critical thinking, essay writing, grammar, critical reading, and research skills. These skills will benefit you both during your time at USNCC and in your military career; mastering them will enhance your ability to gather, analyze, and present information effectively.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Apply critical thinking, analytical reasoning, information literacy, teamwork, and written communication.
2. Demonstrate effective communication in written forms.
3. Identify scholarly sources assessing bias and veracity of supporting evidence.
4. Develop written products that demonstrate the ability to effectively communicate complex topics clearly and succinctly.
