		The A2P adapter is intended for use with research coils (investigational devices) that have a legacy A-port connector in combination with GE MR systems equipped only with a P-port receptacle. To support this configuration, the coil manufacturer or other qualified personnel must create an entry in the MR system's coil database. Please contact the RF coil manufacturer to determine who is authorized to generate the coil database entry. Coil driver files are not included in the scope of delivery for the A2P adapter and must be ordered separately if required.

		Please note the following prerequisites for operating third-party coils on a GE MR system: Depending on the specific MR system, either a non-GEM or an eXpress patient table must be used to ensure compatibility with third-party coils. Additionally, a research contract with GE Healthcare must be in place. During coil installation, the superuser password and the option key "makefromxls" will be required. If you are unsure whether these prerequisites have been met, we recommend contacting your local GE Healthcare representative for confirmation. All coils will be operated in the "research mode" of the MR system, and all possible limitations apply to the operation of the coils. The coil files provided with your coil are valid only for the software version specified in your order. If the MR system is upgraded in the future, new coil files will be required and should be ordered before the upgrade. The current cost to upgrade to the next higher software version is $826.00 per coil.
