1. C2 Assessment Insights

- 4ID and 25th ID are learning how a data-centric C2 platform allows them to improve decision making
- Distributed, Multi-Node C2 Requires Doctrinal and Technical Adaptation
- Network Transport, Redundancy, and Power Management Are Foundational to C2 Node Survivability
- Policy and Interoperability Remain Major Friction Points for Joint and Coalition C2
- Leadership and Training Drive C2 System Adoption and Decision Optimization

2. C2 Nodes

- Distributed C2 is required to survive and maintain tempo
- Solutions must increase a commander's flexibility to employ his C2 system core C2 capability, sustainability, and training
- Key attributes for capabilities: reduced signature, a single C2 platform, emphasis on AI-enabled, data-centric C2 with collaborative tools
- Effectiveness driven by clarity of roles, authorities, and data flow across nodes—not just tools
- Commanders need a flexible framework to employ C2 nodes based on mission and conditions
- CTCs and Warfighters will be essential to reinforcing, validating, and refining C2 node employment
